

Following the resignation of the current leader, Bristol Metropolitan Orchestra is hoping to appoint a new leader to take up the post in September 2024. The post is voluntary (ie unpaid) but the trustees are keen to support some study sessions for the leader's own professional development. The orchestra would be willing to consider applicants wishing to share the responsibility with others.

This long established amateur orchestra enjoys a reputation for high quality music making, performing regularly in St Georges and occasionally at the Bristol Beacon. Rehearsals take place on Tuesday evenings in Redland (opposite Redland Church). More information about the orchestra can be found at its website
